THE OCCULTATION OF VENUS .- The Occultation of Venus by the Moon, took place last evening, agreeably to prediction. The near approach of these two beautiful bodies, was observable long before sunset, and as the evening wore on, all eyes were directed to the western quarter of the heavens. For about two hours, the sky remained transparently clear, except a few floating clouds, which, in no wise, interfered with the beautiful spectacle; and it was doubtless enjoyed by thousands throughout the country, as it certainly was by multitudes in this

Just at the time of disappearance, clouds unfortunately intervened, and prevented observation, but at the moment of re-appearance, the sky was entirely clear. As seen through the telescope, no perceptible difference could be noticed, between the calculated, and the observed time. The planet presented its convex side first, and required about one minute to come completely into view, and as it came out on the illuminated side of the moon, a strikingly favorable opportunity was afforded the Telescopic Observer, to contrast the bright silvery light of Venus, with the comparatively their relative intensity, &c.

Venus is at present, about half full, and in a remarkably favorable position for observations, and even tyros in Astronomy, know, that nothing can exceed in beauty the new Moon, as seen through a good tele-

The report of the committee on organization presents an addition rule, viz: That in every State which has not provided or directed by its Convention how its vote may be cast, this Convention will recognize the right | We of each delegate to cast its individual vote. This was strongly opposed by anti-Douglas yellow light of the Moon, and thus judge of delegates. Discussion still going on. Committee will not report on New York contested seats before this afternoon. Some of the Breckinridge men say this morning that seven southern States have agreed to go for whoever the Pennsylvania delegation indicate, and that he will of course be their man. I am not yet able to verify the truth of this report. The great fight will be about the platform. The Douglas men want the Cincionati platform, pure and simple, with the Dred Scott decision according to his interpretation .-Others from the North will insist upon an commenced work on Saturday last. Their additional resolution against squatter sovereignty and the Dred Scott decision, with their interpretation, while the Southern men will demand Congressional and federal protection of slavery in the Territories, and Southern delegations which stood by the Wood delegation to-day, will either have this or retire in a body from the Convention, and thus split up the democratic party. A move is made in favor of Pearce, of Maryland-it takes well. Mr. Clingman withdraws his name as a candidate for the Vice Presidency. Guthrie stock is certainly rising rapidly. The New York Soft delegation, who will be dmitted, will vote for him from the jump. The Pennsylvania delegation have a storm n their every meeting. Breckinridge is nominally the strongest in it, but a majority of it is believed to be for the different other aspirants as against him.
